Difference Between Crystal and Glass

Key difference: Glass is a generic name, while, crystal is a subcategory of glass, made in the same manner as glass but with different materials.

Hence, all crystal is glass, but not all glass is crystal.

Scientifically, crystals are pure substances whose atoms, molecules, or ions are arranged in an ordered pattern, where they extend in all three spatial dimensions. Crystals most commonly occur naturally on the earth, though the process of crystal formation via mechanisms of crystal growth is called crystallization or solidification.

While, referring in the same context as glass, crystal refers to well glass. The term crystal is often used to refer to glassware that has a more elegant form than the normal or everyday glassware. However, that is not the official difference between the two. Actually, there is no official clean cut definition of crystal.

Still, the general rule that applies is that crystal is a type of glass that contains lead.

There are three primary criteria for crystal as established by the European Union in 1969: a lead content in excess of 24%, a density in excess of 2.90 and a reflective index of 1.545. However, outside of the European Union, this definition is usually disregarded. In the United States, any glass with more than 1% of lead content is termed as crystal.

Technically, the application of the term 'crystal' to glass is in itself inaccurate, as glass is an amorphous solid. Hence, by definition it lacks a crystalline structure, which is necessary for a crystal. Still, the term, even though erroneously applied to glass, has stuck around and remains popular.

The color and brilliance of glass often varies, depending on its content. Glass made with iron tends to have a green tinge, while glass made with soda-lime will have an aqua tinge. While, some find these tinges to be unattractive, glasses with a greenish hue tend to be considerably stronger. Crystals generally are light in color and are mostly translucent. Some clear crystals have the properties of reflecting light into different colors.

When held in the right position, the refraction and dispersion of light from crystal will create a rainbow of hues.

So, in summation, glass is a generic name, while, crystal is a subcategory of glass, made in the same manner as glass but with different materials. Hence, all crystal is glass, but not all glass is crystal.

* To The Customer *

It is important that we and our retailers advise our clients of the unique characteristics of our products.

As our products are hand made and finished, they will not be perfect and we see this as their unique appeal.

Therefore -

- Metal castings and extrusions will have imperfections in the surface. Lamp holders may not be perfectly straight.
- Hand welding will not be perfectly straight and there may be surface finish imperfections due to chemical plating & hand finishing.
- Hand-blown glassware may have bubbles, pin dots, slight lines, rippling, cut edges & be slightly off center.
- Paint color will vary from batch to batch & in case of hand painted finish, each product will be marginally different.

* Please Note *

- * All items are inspected for visible defects before dispatch, we therefore also recommend the retailer does the same before giving to their customer in case of damage in transit. If not inspected, Lode Int. will not accept liability for installation or any other claims for visibly faulty goods. Report any breakage or faults immediately before giving to your customer for replacement parts or fitting.
- * We will not recognize or accept any unreasonable claim relating to the unique characteristics of our hand made products.
- * Products can only be returned if unopened and in original packaging.
- * Products modified to customer request not to be returned.
- * Products ordered separately over time may not match exactly because of color batching or manufacturing changes. No claim related to separate ordering over time will be recognized.
- * Products can change or vary without notice.
- * Images are the property of Lode International. Images of products are illustrative only. Their use is only permissible with written consent.
- * Lode International is not liable for damage/altering the integrity of the light fittings due to faulty globes.
- * Lode International is an accredited E.R.A.C "Responsible Supplier". To Check Compliance - EESS.gov.au - Lode Lighting / ESV-106126
